

We do NOT believe that the FCC should implement any proposal that would preempt a state Telephone Privacy law that is more restrictive. We use to receive several telephone calls each day that were both unwanted and annoying. Since registering for Indiana Telephone Privacy law, we now only receive one or two a week. These laws protect the privacy of individuals and do not harm legitimate businesses or charitable organizations. They have other ways that are less obtrusive to the home for getting out their messages. In short, the FCC should NOT implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana Telephone Privacy Law protections.
